SUBJECT: SDSU Students Launch Website to Support Campus Musicians!

This week in San Diego, a few creative musicians at San Diego State University (SDSU) announced the launch of a brand new website dedicated to the support of campus musicians. The site is www.SDSUmusic.com and its goal is to bring together the many creative musical talents living within the SDSU community.

“This school has so many incredible musicians operating in complete blindness to each other. Our intention is to build a site that brings together not only musicians, but engineers, managers, and support players of all capacities. There are over 30,000 students, staff, and faculty on this campus and we want them all to meet and make music!”

- Craig Lassen, Owner

The website offers several features designed to help unite people of musical orientation at SDSU. Below are just a few of the highlights:

- MUSICIANS LIST: Browse listings of artists and bands, listen to samples, and link to musician websites. Discover who is in your own backyard!
- BUSINESS LIST: An ever expanding list of local services from Marketing & Management to Mixing & Mastering.
- SDSU DISCOUNTS: This page provides information about vendors offering special discounts to the SDSU community of musicians.
- SAMPLES: Provides samples of audio and video for download. Great for booking agents looking for a particular sound.
- CALENDAR: Designed to help musicians get the word out, this page features links to personal pages and flyers.
- TECH ZONE: Managed by the recording arts students, this page is developing a large resource of technical data to help engineers of all flavors.
- ON CAMPUS: Provides a detailed list of SDSU academic programs, campus organizations, and on-campus venues.
